Freo—let's make a day of it

WESTERN AUSTRALIA

South Beach, South Fremantle

Early starters

Fremantle is breakfast central. Land early for some alfresco time on the Cappuccino Strip, or explore the side streets for eggs your way and your first great coffee / chai / juice / smoothie of the day.

Fremantle's first advantage is that everything is walkable—beach to beach, and shopping district to arts precinct. Yellow-topped wayfinding signs around the Esplanade and West End help navigate.

A hop on, hop off tram tour is an alternative option if it's hot; your ticket is good all day, so you can catch a ride when the energy flags.

Little Lefroy's, South Fremantle

Locals tips

South Fremantle is full of morning people. Catering to the early swimming crowd at South Beach, many local cafés open from 6 am.

Want some focus to your morning walk? Pick a self-guided walking trail from the Fremantle story website, and add historic, culturally significant or arty offerings to your ambling.

Culture vultures

Pre-lunch is a good time to check out a museum, the WA Shipwrecks Museum is just a gold coin entry—not bad for the foremost museum of its kind in the southern hemisphere.

If it's the weekend, you'll likely be drawn in by the crowd-pulling, death-defying buskers, and the aromas coming out of Fremantle Markets—that particular blend of coffee, incense, gozleme, bao, crepes and doughnuts. Shopping for craft, jewellery and souvenirs is hungry work, and you'll certainly find lunch here.

On non-market days, the West End has some good shopping for design, art and fashion enthusiasts. Combine it with a wander through galleries at the Moore's Building, Bathers Beach Art Precinct or Kidogo Arthouse. The arts, festival and music scene in Freo is always humming—check Fremantlestory.com.au to find what's on.

Fremantle International Street Arts Festival

Locals tips

At 1 pm every day, a canon is fired at the Round House. Guides give the lowdown on why you should 'keep your eye on the ball'.

Fremantle Arts Centre is a cool oasis all week long with its high-ceilinged galleries and garden café. On Sundays, free music happens in the courtyard between 2 and 4 pm.

Segway Tours outside Fremantle Prison

Adventurers

As the heat sets in, head underground. The Tunnels Tour at Fremantle Prison puts you in a canoe for a novel and adventurous exploration of the submerged passageways beneath the prison. (Kids must be 12 to do this, and bookings are recommended.)

A more adrenaline-filled boat ride comes courtesy of West Coast Jet, which operates a 12 metre jet boat from Fishing Boat Harbour. Expect loud tunes and plenty of spins, fishtails and wet, wild adventure.

Back on dry land, Segway Tours offer a novel mode of transport and a guided tour of Freo's points of interest, all in one. Tours last from one to 1.5 hours, and depart near the WA Shipwrecks Museum.

Fishing Boat Harbour

Chill seekers

Come sundown, everything twinkles at Fishing Boat Harbour. Add a light sea breeze, the fading serenade of seagulls and a high concentration of fish and chippers, and you've got an archetypal Freo evening.

Before the sun sinks, consider a swim at Bathers Beach. The brightly coloured change huts might be the clincher—if not the calm water and the timber structures to keep kids occupied.

This is also a choice vantage point for watching the sun go down over the water. Strolling along a nearby groyne or claiming a patch of sand at South Beach are also good options for sunset viewing.

Little Creatures

Locals tips

Little Creatures remains a reliable haunt for food, drinks and sea air. The rear deck has a sand pit with enough toy tip trucks to occupy dozens of kids.

The deckchairs on the beach at Bathers Beach House are the only licensed beach chairs in Australia. Take a seat to claim bragging rights.

Locals tips

The Fremantle Tourist Wheel has 25,000 LEDs, and spins every 8 minutes or so—until 9 pm most nights, 10 pm on Saturdays. Hitch a ride.

The action at the Esplanade Youth Plaza is always entertaining, even if you haven't brought your skateboard/ scooter/ bike. The nearby playground has a great climbing frame for restless kids.
