I believe Fremantle residents deserve a councillor who puts community before personal politics or activism. After years of activist agendas dominating the council's priorities, I offer a practical, independent voice focused on the basics: fair rates, reliable rubbish services, safe footpaths and roads, well-maintained parks and amenities, and transparent financial management.

As a fifth-generation Western Australian with deep ties to Fremantle, I've served in SLSA, the Fremantle Society, Inner Harbour Liaison, Festival of Lights, precinct groups, community associations, and school auxiliaries. I understand the pressures families and small businesses face, and I will advocate for sensible, cost-effective decisions that support both.

I'm committed to protecting Fremantle's heritage, tree canopy, parks, and coastline, while ensuring council accountability. I'm not aligned with any political party or activist group just a community-first candidate who will listen, act, and drive delivery.
